More Secrets of the Kingdom

The Bible Lesson at a Glance
In a series of short topics, Jesus lovingly raises His listeners’ sight above the commonly practiced behavior of the time to a higher standard. Speaking of how we relate to one another, He expresses a deeper, truly Christian lifestyle, characterized by love, understanding, and compassion.

This is a lesson about community.
Christians are called to a higher standard than anyone else. As they express their love for their friends as well as for their enemies, both are drawn more closely to the community of faith and the Savior who is at the center.

Teacher Enrichment
“Occasions of irritation to the Jews were constantly arising from their contact with the Roman soldiery…. With bitterness of soul they heard the loud blast of the trumpet and saw the troops forming around the standard of Rome and bowing in homage to this symbol of her power. Collisions between the people and the soldiers were frequent, and these inflamed the popular hatred…. Every day deepened in the hearts of the people the longing to cast off the Roman yoke…. The people looked eagerly to Christ, hoping that He was the One who was to humble the pride of Rome” (Thoughts From the Mount of Blessing, pp. 69, 70).

“[Jesus] pointed His hearers to the Ruler of the universe, under the new name, ‘Our Father.’…. Even the people of Israel had become so blinded to the precious teaching of the prophets concerning God that this revelation of His paternal love was as an original subject, a new gift to the world…. The Jews held that God loved those who served Him—according to their view, those who fulfilled the requirements of the rabbis—and that all the rest of the world lay under His frown and curse. Not so, said Jesus; the whole world, the evil and the good, lies in the sunshine of His love (ibid., p. 74).

What are three things God has done for me for which I am grateful? How does focusing on these gifts from God impact the way I treat others—even difficult people?
Welcome
Welcome students at the door and direct them to their seats. Ask them how their week has been. Encourage learners to study their Sabbath School lesson regularly, and debrief students on the previous lesson to help them see the chronological continuity of the Bible stories from one week to another. Then ask students to share a few things they learned from their study of the current lesson.

Ask: What was the most interesting part of the Bible story? What activity did you find most helpful?

Invite students to share their experiences and/or the handiworks they created for Sabbath School during the week.

Have students begin the readiness activity of your choice.

LESSON 4

READINESS ACTIVITIES

Select the activity or activities that are most appropriate for your situation.

A

Fill That Cup
Distribute pens and paper to each class member. Hold up a paper cup.
Say: Think of a creative use for this cup. Do this on your own without talking to the person next to you.
Allow one or two minutes for students to do this.
Say: Now get into groups of four or five and tell the uses you thought of. After they have reported to each other, have each group report their ideas while you write them where all can see.

Debriefing
Ask: How many uses for the cup did you discover when you worked alone? (Write the numbers on the board.) How many uses for the cup did you learn from others in your group? (Write the numbers on the board.) Look at the numbers on the board. What do they tell you? (You come up with more ideas when you do them with others.) What does this tell us about our need for others? (We benefit from working with others.)
Allow students who know the power text to say it either individually or in group:
“How good and pleasant it is when God’s people live together in unity!” (Psalm 133:1)
Have the entire class repeat the power text together. Allow visitors and students who don’t know it yet to read along. Affirm them for their effort. However, do not single out students by forcing everyone to say it, nor reprimand those who don’t know it. Sabbath School is a place where students need to feel comfortable and accepted as they grow in God’s grace.

Remember that

Because God loves us, we are able to love our friends and our enemies.

B

Practicing Empathy
Prior to Sabbath School create several scenarios on separate situation cards. Here is a list of situations you may wish to consider:

1. Tomorrow I will be arriving to your town where I know no one and there is no public transportation directly to where I need to go. Could any of you help me find a ride from the train station?
2. My parents are working until very late this evening and I have nowhere to go after school. Could anyone help me find a place to go until my parents return from work?
3. I am your neighbor and I’ve just returned from the hospital where I had surgery. I don’t have enough strength to walk and take care of myself. Do you know of anyone who would be able to stay at my house and help for a few days?

Have students form groups and distribute one situation card per group. Ask group members to read the situation on their card and discuss solutions to these problems.
At the end allow someone from each group to share with the class the ‘situation’ that was listed on their card and the solution they found to it.

Debriefing
Say: What did it feel like to place yourself in the shoes of a person who desperately needs help? How did you feel when someone offered you help? How is this like or unlike the way God wants us to treat one another? How is this the way we treat our friends?
If you have not done Readiness Activity A, review now with the students the power text, Psalm 133:1, as outlined in the previous activity.

“How good and pleasant it is when God’s people live together in unity!” (Psalm 133:1)

Remember that

Because God loves us, we are able to love our friends and our enemies.
Fellowship
Allow students to report things that they are pleased or troubled about. Acknowledge any birthdays, special events, or achievements. Give a special, warm greeting to all visitors. Get contact information from the adult who brought them to church. Early in the following week, send a postcard or e-mail letting the visitors know how much you enjoyed having them in your class and that you would like to see them again.

Suggested Songs
“Behold What Manner of Love” (He Is Our Song, no. 42)
“Friends” (He Is Our Song, no. 118)
“This Is My Commandment” (He Is Our Song, no. 116)

Mission
Use Adventist Mission for Youth and Adults (go to www.juniorpowerpoints.org and click on MISSION) or another mission report available to you. For the mission story, have a map of the world where the students can identify the location of the mission story and compare it to where they are. You could use pushpins to mark where the mission story takes place.

Offering
Say: We show love to our friends, and to people we don’t even know when we bring our tithes and offerings to Sabbath School.

Prayer
Have students join hands and pray: Jesus, together we come to this place. Please show us how to love each other today, and also how to love others outside this circle of friendship. Amen.
Introducing the Bible Story
Say: Our lesson for today discusses the importance of using our words wisely. It also has good advice on how to treat our friends and even our enemies. What are some general rules for good conversations that lead to positive relationships? (respect, good listening skills, desire to build each other up not to tear each other down, protecting the rights and reputation of others, not gossiping, etc.) Because God loves us, we are able to love our friends and our enemies.

Experiencing the Story
Form four groups. Have each group read aloud in their own group, as follows: Group One, Matthew 5:21-26; Group Two, Matthew 5:33-37; Group Three, Matthew 5:38-42; Group Four, Matthew 5:43-48.

Have each group write a short summary of their passage, using modern circumstances. Each summary should begin with “You have heard it said . . .” and contain “But I tell you . . .” For instance, “You have heard it said that you shouldn’t murder anyone, but I tell you that if you are angry with your little brother you probably are not a citizen of the invisible kingdom.” Allow time for each group to report to the class.

Accommodation for students with special needs
Allow students who experience difficulty with writing and spelling to express verbally their observations, while another group member records their answers in writing.
Exploring the Bible
Say: Much of what Jesus talked about on the mountain was not new. It was all in the Torah, the books of the law, that made up the Jewish Bible at the time. What was new was the way that He interpreted these sayings. The scribes, Pharisees, and teachers of the law interpreted the law in a way that was troublesome and unclear. Jesus interpreted the law correctly because He was the author of the law. Let’s look at some of the Old Testament texts on which the Sermon on the Mount was based.

Staying in the same groups, have the students find and read: Group One, Exodus 20:13; Group Two, Leviticus 19:12; Numbers 30:2; Deuteronomy 23:21-23; Group Three, Exodus 21:23-25; Leviticus 24:19, 20; Deuteronomy 15:7-11; Group Four, Leviticus 19:18; Deuteronomy 23:2, 3, 6; Leviticus 19:2. When they finish, ask: What comparisons did you find between your first set of verses and your second set?

Give each group time to report. The students in Group Four will probably say that they couldn’t find a verse that said to hate your enemy.

Say: The words “Hate your enemy” cannot be found anywhere in the Old Testament, but the teachers of the day taught that hating your enemy was OK. How do you think those teachers and others like them felt when they heard Jesus’ teaching? (jealous, angry, resentful) How would you have felt? (confused, hopeless, relieved, happy).

Scenarios
Ask: Tell me about a time someone treated you unfairly. When the situation is shared, for example: someone said something unkind about me to another person, then say: I know I have been guilty of gossiping at times. Has anyone else here done that before? No matter what we have done God loves us. Since God loved us even when we talked bad about someone else, can we practice that same kind of love? Now we are able to love our friends and our enemies.

Tell me about another situation when someone wronged you. (Repeat several times, making the point that we ourselves have experienced God’s love and forgiveness no matter how badly we behaved. Because of that we get to pass along that grace and mercy to others.) Because God loves us, we are able to love our friends and our enemies.
Ask students to form groups of three or four. Have them share how they have gone the extra mile for a friend in need and how they have sought to implement the attributes of God’s kingdom in their everyday experiences (i.e., was a peacemaker in a disagreement among peers).

If there are students who would like to share in front of the entire group, have them talk about their experiences. Close by referring to the blessings that Jesus promises to everyone who lives according to these values of His kingdom.

Let’s say together our power text,

“How good and pleasant it is when God’s people live together in unity!” (Psalm 133:1)

Prayer and closing comments:
Ask God to show your Sabbath School members that He is the only one who can give them the power to love their friends and enemies the way He asks them to: through His grace.

Reminder to parents:
Say: Check out the student Bible study guide to find Parents’ Pages for your use in family worship, or however you wish to use them to spiritually guide your children. You may listen to the podcast of the lesson online at www.juniorpowerpoints.org/podcast.php?channel=1.

Coming up next week:
Say: A friend borrows bread in the middle of the night. God wants us to help our friends even if it is inconvenient.
LESSON 4

Have you ever heard a sermon so radical that it made you want to change right away, but it made other people angry? Many in Jesus’ audience had that experience as He finished telling them about the invisible kingdom. Imagine again one of the boys your age who was there.

The boy watched the Pharisees as Jesus talked. They listened with stony faces. I guess they don’t agree with what He’s saying, he thought.

That day the boy heard so many great things. He learned from Jesus that as a true child of the heavenly Father, he needed to treat friends and strangers with love and compassion. Even when he didn’t feel like it, God would enable him to love others.

The boy thought about the beggar boys in the marketplace. Their clothes were ragged and dirty. He felt uncomfortable around them and tried to avoid them. Maybe I can help them somehow, he thought.

Jesus continued talking about how a person’s actions tell others much about the condition of the heart. “You have heard that it was said to the people long ago, ‘You shall not murder, and anyone who murders will be subject to judgment.’ But I tell you that you love your enemies and pray for those who persecute you, that you may be children of your Father in heaven. He causes his sun to rise on the evil and the good, and sends rain on the righteous and the unrighteous. . . Be perfect, therefore, as your heavenly Father is perfect” (verses 43-48).

The boy glanced at Mother. Sometimes she would take food to a woman whose husband had died. Other times she provided clothes for people who had lost everything when their house burned down. It never mattered to her whether she knew the people.

“Be careful not to practice your righteousness in front of others to be seen by them,” Jesus warned. “But when you give to the needy, do not let your left hand know what your right hand is doing, so that your giving may be in secret. Then your Father, who sees what is done in secret, will reward you” (Matthew 6:1, 3, 4).

He thought about his mother’s actions. She never made a big deal about what she was doing for others. That’s a lot different than other people I’ve seen, he thought. The Pharisees always make such a commotion.

The boy reflected on Jesus’ teaching. Now he understood that as a child of the heavenly Father, he must show those who don’t know Him what being Jesus’ follower truly means. If people would see him treating others with love and respect, they might ask questions about why he acted that way. Then he could tell them about God and what He has done in his life. But if he was careless in his actions, then he would not be a mirror of God’s love. Those who don’t know Jesus wouldn’t recognize anything different in his life. Then he would lose the chance to tell them about God and what He has done for him.

Later the boy said to his parents, “Jesus said so many things today. I don’t know how I can do everything He said.”

“Remember, you can’t do any of it on your own,” Father reminded him. “God gives you the power.”

The boy’s face lit with a beaming smile. “I like that idea!” he said.
Sabbath
