The Bible Lesson at a Glance
Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, captures Jerusalem and takes Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah (later known as Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego) to be educated and trained to serve King Nebuchadnezzar. Daniel asks to be served a simple diet of pulse and water instead of the king’s elaborate food and drink. Finally, when Daniel and his friends appear before Nebuchadnezzar, he finds them to be 10 times wiser than all the other young princes.

This is a lesson about worship.
Daniel and his three friends choose not to partake of the rich foods and alcohol that will have a detrimental effect on their bodies. They choose instead to worship God by making healthful choices and maintaining the gifts of health He has given them.

Teacher Enrichment
“The spirit that possessed Daniel, the youth of today may have; they may draw from the same source of strength, possess the same power of self-control, and reveal the same grace in their lives, even under circumstances as unfavorable. Though surrounded by temptations to self-indulgence, especially in our large cities, where every form of sensual gratification is made easy and inviting, yet by divine grace their purpose to honor God may remain firm. Through strong resolution and vigilant watchfulness they may withstand every temptation that assails the soul. But only by him who determines to do right because it is right will the victory be gained. . . .

“The same mighty truths that were revealed through these men, God desires to reveal through the youth and children today” (Prophets and Kings, pp. 489, 490).

How well do I worship through my gift of health?
Welcome

Welcome students at the door and direct them to their seats. Ask them how their week has been. Encourage learners to study their Sabbath School lesson regularly. You may debrief students on the previous lesson to help them see the chronological continuity of the Bible stories from one week to another. Then ask students to share a few things they have learned from the current lesson prior to Sabbath School. Ask: What was the most interesting part of the Bible story? What activity did you find the most helpful? Invite students to share their experiences and/or the handiworks they created for Sabbath School during the week.

Transition into the readiness activity of your choice.

LESSON 6

READINESS ACTIVITIES

Select the activity or activities that are most appropriate for your situation.

CELEBRATIONS!

Write the word “CELEBRATIONS” down the side of the board.

Say: We all know that gifts and celebrations go together. I am sure each of you is thankful for the gift of health that God has given you. But you can enjoy maximum benefit from a gift when you acknowledge it with thanks and actually use it in your life. The acronym CELEBRATIONS! can help us remember the gifts of health that support vitality, energy, and abundant life.

Assign 12 volunteers each one of the words that each letter of the acronym stands for (or double up if you have fewer students). Ask them to, one at a time, write their word next to the appropriate letter on the board, and then read its explanation that you provide them from pages 151, 152.

Debriefing

Ask: What have you learned from our CELEBRATIONS? Let’s say the power text, 1 Corinthians 10:31:

“So whether you eat or drink or whatever you do, do it all for the glory of God” (1 Corinthians 10:31).

How can this verse relate to the CELEBRATIONS we have written out on the board? How does CELEBRATIONS help you worship and glorify God?

Say: Our point today is that

We honor God when we take care of our health.

B

Healthy Choices

Write the following statements on the board. Say: It can sometimes be a challenge to make healthful choices when your friends are not. Read the situations on the board, and on your paper, rate yourself using a scale of 1 to 10, with 1 being “easy to do” and 10 being “difficult to do.”

1. Saying no when offered a cigarette.
2. Avoiding drinks with caffeine.
3. Avoiding junk foods.
4. Going to bed early enough.
5. Drinking eight glasses of water a day.
6. Exercising or playing sports at least three times a week.
7. Not having a candy bar binge.
8. Trusting in God to give your mind peace.
10. Having a happy and thankful attitude.

Debriefing

Ask: Which items seem to be the easiest? Which the hardest? How do you think these situations relate to worshiping God? Let’s say together the power text, 1 Corinthians 10:31:

“So whether you eat or drink or whatever you do, do it all for the glory of God” (1 Corinthians 10:31).

Ask: How can we honor and worship God more fully by the choices we make concerning our body? If you offer your body to God as a gift, what condition do you want it to be in? We are learning today that

We honor God when we take care of our health.

Accommodation for students with special needs

Have students with visual impairments sit close to the board for this activity. Alternatively, prepare in advance a handout for these students and for any other student who may benefit from it.
C

What’s the Difference?
Supply students with magazines (or preselected pictures). Divide the students into small groups, giving each a poster board. Ask them to divide their poster board in two columns and place the words “Healthy” and “Unhealthy” at the top of the two columns. Say: Find pictures or words in the magazines that describe a healthy or unhealthy lifestyle. Cut out the pictures and words and glue them on your poster board to make a collage. Allow students to briefly present their collages.

Debriefing
Ask: What are some of the many gifts God has given us? How can we celebrate and honor God for the wonderful health-producing gifts He has given us? Let’s say together the power text, 1 Corinthians 10:31:

“So whether you eat or drink or whatever you do, do it all for the glory of God” (1 Corinthians 10:31).

Remember, We honor God when we take care of our health.

Accommodation for students with special needs
Guide students who experience difficulty with this activity to participate in groups where they could receive help from their peers.

Introducing the Bible Story
Say: You have one minute to make a list of all the different types of fruit you know. Then ask: Who has the longest list? Ask that person to read their list, having other students cross off every fruit they have in common with the reader and add the ones they do not have. Then ask the others to share with the reader names of fruit they have that are not on the reader’s list. Everyone should end up with the same list. (When all the lists are the same, you may want to reward everyone with a piece of fruit they can take home for lunch.)

Say: Today we’re talking about how we can worship God by caring for our bodies and our minds—important gifts God has given us. In our Bible lesson today the young man Daniel and his friends honored God in this way. Let’s try to repeat our power text and power point.

We honor God when we take care of our health.

Experiencing the Story
Ask students to take turns reading aloud all the verses of Daniel 1.

Say: I need three volunteers to participate in the following debate going on in Daniel’s head. We need two people to sit in chairs facing each other, with Daniel sitting between them. “Daniel” needs to act as if mentally struggling with the decision by using facial and body expressions as the conversation is going on. Give copies of the script on page 153 to the three volunteers.

Say: We don’t know if Daniel’s decision was immediate or if he had to think about what he should do. Some choices we have to make are easy and quick, while others we may struggle with. Daniel was in a difficult situation. His life may even have been at risk. Let’s listen in on the conversation going on in his head between two “Wills”—the “Will to Do Right” and the “Will to Go the Easy Way.”

Debriefing
Ask: Notice verse 8 of Daniel 1 says that Daniel “resolved not to defile himself” (NIV). Do you think his friends would have gone along with the king’s food if it had not been for Daniel’s influence? Do you think Daniel’s choice affected the Babylonians in their eating habits? Does the way you treat your body affect only yourself or others too? Why or why not?
Exploring the Bible
Write the following texts and questions on the board. Then divide the students into three groups. Ask them to examine the texts and then answer the questions, preparing to report back to the larger group.

1. Genesis 1:29. What foods did God give Adam and Eve to eat in the Garden of Eden? Give some examples. Are these foods still available today? How should this fact influence our choice of what to eat?

2. Genesis 9:3, 4. What did God give to Noah and his family to eat after the flood? Why do you think He did that? What do you think is God’s ideal, and why?

3. Genesis 7:2; Leviticus 11:3-23, 26, 27, 29, and 30. Which animals did God say were clean and which were unclean? What was the difference between the two? Why do you think some animals were declared unclean?

Ask: On the basis of what you have discovered, what kind of food do you think is the healthiest? Do these guidelines given so long ago still apply today? How can we honor and glorify God by what we eat? Does it really matter?

Debriefing
Ask: According to the verses we just read, what kinds of obstacles will arise? Why is overcoming obstacles important? What should motivate us to pursue healthy lifestyle habits? Our power text, 1 Corinthians 10:31, gives us the answer. Let’s say it together:

“So whether you eat or drink or whatever you do, do it all for the glory of God” (1 Corinthians 10:31).

Our power text this week is:

We honor God when we take care of our health.

Accommodation for students with special needs
Have students with certain learning disabilities and those with visual impairments sit close to the board for this activity. Alternatively, prepare in advance handouts with the list of Bible references and questions.

Evaluation
Write the word “CELEBRATIONS” lengthwise down the side of the board. Then write out the corresponding words next to each one of the letters (C—Choices, E—Exercise, L—Liquids, E—Environment, B—Belief, R—Rest, A—Air, T—Temperance, I—Integrity, O—Optimism, N—Nutrition, S—Social support). Provide a piece of paper for each student. Ask them to write “CELEBRATIONS” lengthwise down the side of the paper. Invite each student to evaluate their choices over the last two days. Beside each of the letters the students should record what their personal choices have been for the last 48 hours.

For example, beside the C they can record any positive choices such as “doing my homework before I played with my friends (i.e., E—rode my bike, played football; L—had two glasses of water and three sodas; E—put my soda can in the trash instead of the recycle bin, etc.).

After the students have completed their inventory, ask them to evaluate it and decide how closely it resembles the guidelines we learned about in our lesson today.

Debriefing
Ask: How do you feel when you stop to take a look at the choices you have been making over the last two days? Why is it important to take care of the gift of health that God has given us? Taking care of our bodies includes watching out for our mental health also. What can you do to improve your mental health? (Refer back to Readiness A and the CELEBRATIONS list.)

Say: God gave us guidelines because He loves us. He created our bodies and knows what is best for them.

We honor God when we take care of our health.
Face the Challenge
Invite students to talk about their experiences if they shared with someone during the past week the benefits of exercising and eating healthy, nutritious meals.

Use the inventory created in Applying the Lesson. Divide the students into pairs and ask them to create a plan of ways they can improve the “celebration” of the gift of health that God has given us.

Debriefing
Ask: Would anyone like to share with the whole group their action plan for improving their celebration of good health? If there is a group need or a significant number who are accepting the challenge of improving in the same area, see if you can arrange a group activity that will help to support them.

Say: When we take care of ourselves and use the gifts God has given us to promote good health, we will feel the benefit mentally, physically, and spiritually. And we have the opportunity to be a great influence to those around us.

Let’s remember our power point,

We honor God when we take care of our health.

Note to teachers
You might start a CELEBRATIONS chart in your Sabbath School room. This can be used for the rest of the quarter. Create the acronym on a large bulletin board, and each week as the students arrive, ask them to use brightly colored markers to record the positive choices they have made during the week. Celebrate together as you watch your board expand with the evidence of the student’s good choices.

Alternate Activity
Say: Draw a picture that comes to your mind after reading 1 Corinthians 6:19. Then write out the text below the picture. Plan to give it to someone you can influence to take better care of their gift of health.

YOU NEED:
- Bibles
- paper
- markers

Prayer and closing comments:
Say: Dear God, we praise Your name for the gifts You have given us. For health and for all the good things and good instruction we have to maintain that gift in wonderful condition. We pray that we will celebrate the gifts You give us and glorify You in everything we choose to do. Amen.

Reminder to parents:
Say: Check out the student Bible study guide to find Parents’ Pages for your use in family worship, or however you wish to use them to spiritually guide your children. You may listen to the podcast of the lesson online at www.juniorpowerpoints.org/podcast.php?channel=1.

Coming up next week:
Say: Hebrew youth are thrown into the fiery furnace. God is with us even in difficult or dangerous situations.
Lesson 6

Eat, Drink, and Be Healthy

Have you ever refused to eat something because you knew it was not good for you, and felt everyone looking at you? If you have, you know exactly how Daniel felt. If you haven’t, imagine what it would be like to refuse to obey the king’s command.

Daniel was just a teenager, and already he’d had a hard life. Jerusalem, his beautiful home, had been attacked and besieged by an army from a heathen country until the king of Jerusalem surrendered. The king and the royal family, the leading men of the land, and all the soldiers, craftsmen, and artists were taken prisoner. Daniel and three of his friends were among those taken captive and probably forced to march the 600 or more miles to Babylon.

What a change. They’d gone from being those with the brightest futures in their country to prisoners. But the fact that God had given them good health and lots of natural ability was not unnoticed in Babylon. The king, Nebuchadnezzar, instructed one of his court officials to choose young men with potential from among the prisoners and to make them Babylonians.

They would be trained to serve in the king’s court. They would learn the language and the literature. They would be given new, Babylonian names. And they would eat from the king’s table.

Daniel and his friends knew that much in their lives was beyond their control. They had no choice when their land was conquered by the Babylonian armies. They had no choice when they were taken prisoners to a foreign land. They had no choice when they were ripped away from their families and country. But they knew that certain things were within their control.

No matter where they were, they could choose to worship God. They could choose to take care of themselves the way He had taught them to. They could choose to glorify Him in everything they did.

Their first test came at dinner. The king’s table was covered with food a Hebrew boy would never eat. “But Daniel resolved not to defile himself with the royal food and wine, and he asked the chief official for permission not to defile himself this way” (Daniel 1:8).

Disobeying the king was no small matter. “I am afraid of my lord the king, who has assigned your food and drink,” the court official said. “Why should he see you looking worse than the other young men your age? The king would then have my head because of you” (verse 10).

Little did he know that eating the way Daniel was asking to would keep him looking good and strong and healthy. So Daniel negotiated a settlement. “Please test your servants for ten days,” he said. “Give us nothing but vegetables to eat and water to drink. Then compare our appearance with that of the young men who eat the royal food, and treat your servants in accordance with what you see” (verses 12, 13).

That sounded reasonable, so the challenge was on. At the end of 10 days Daniel and his friends looked healthier and more nourished than the other boys. From then on they got to eat what they wanted.

Not only did they look and feel good. They were smarter and wiser than the other students who were not taking care of their health as God had taught. When they were presented to Nebuchadnezzar, the king “found none equal to Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael and Azariah. . . . In every matter of wisdom and understanding about which the king questioned them, he found them ten times better than all the magicians and enchanters in his whole kingdom” (verses 19, 20).

Choosing what to eat may not seem like the most important battle to fight when one is a prisoner in a heathen country. But these boys had promised to be faithful to God, and that extended into all areas of their lives. That meant that they were going to honor God by taking care of the health He had given them.

We all make choices every day. We can praise God for the gifts He has given us, and take care of them the way He has taught us. Just as Daniel did, we can choose to glorify Him in everything we do—whether we eat or drink, exercise or sleep, breathe fresh air or trust in God. We can choose to honor our Creator in everything we do.
