- Paul was just beginning the very last part of his very last missionary trip. One more short stop and he would visit his old friend Evangelist Philip and his _____ in Caesarea. Then he would go on to Jerusalem, where he knew God was directing him, even though his friends had warned him of danger.
- The apostles, such as Peter, James, and John, were busy preaching and teaching. Philip and others used their gifts as administrators to make sure everything was _____ well. Once Philip had been sent by God's spirit to an Ethiopian officer who was reading while he crossed the desert.
- Each member of the growing church was one more _____ in God's chain of grace let down from heaven to save and to serve.
- But he was not the only one God was using to build the early church. Many people with many different _____ were joining God in His work to bring the gospel of grace and the truth about Jesus to everyone.
- Seating himself, Agabus wrapped the _____ around both his own hands and feet and then looked up at Paul. "This is a message from the Holy Spirit. The owner of this _____ will have his hands and feet shackled by the Jews in Jerusalem and will be turned over to the Gentiles for trial and execution."
